REPORT AND RECOMMENDATION

Plaintiff Ryan Ray Corman ("Corman") filed a motion for a writ of mandamus and a motion for a protective order regarding complaints he has about the North Dakota State Hospital where he is being held for an evaluation. Corman seeks to have the North Dakota State Hospital “restore all [of Corman’s] rights and protections due an American citizen not incarcerated for a criminal offense, accompanied by a Protective Order to [e]nsure future compliance” (Doc. #26, p. 5). The North Dakota State Hospital and its staff are not defendants in the instant action and the instant action does not involve any claims regarding the plaintiff’s involuntary commitment to the North Dakota State Hospital, which occurred after Corman filed his complaint in this case. It is RECOMMENDED that Corman’s motion for a writ of mandamus (Doc. #26) and his motion for a protective order (Doc. #27) be DENIED.

Corman filed a second motion for a writ of mandamus. (Doc. #28). He seeks the full names and official positions of the “clinical team” at the North Dakota State Hospital. (Doc. #28). Corman states the clinical team’s actions warrant an additional civil rights complaint. Id. Corman also filed a motion for an order to correct his conditions of confinement and restore his rights, and a second motion for a protective order. (Doc. #33). Corman challenges the conditions at the North Dakota State Hospital where he is being held for an evaluation. Id. As noted above, the request is inappropriate in the context of this action, as the North Dakota State Hospital and its employees are not defendants. It is RECOMMENDED that Corman’s second motion for a writ of mandamus (Doc. #28) be DENIED, his motion for an order to correct his conditions of confinement (Doc. #33) be DENIED, and his second motion for a protection order (Doc. #33) be DENIED.

Dated this 21st day of November, 2012.
